Spring 2018

New Resources

This semester, the library is introducing lots of exciting new resources.

NC LIVE: Every three years, NC LIVE re-evaluates its online resource offerings to best meet the needs of the communities it serves. A new resource cycle begins in January 2018 with 14 new databases. Some of the new online resources include: Credo Reference, CINAHL Plus with Full Text, Consumer Reports via MasterFILE, Ferguson's Career Guidance Center, Mango Languages, ProQuest Historic North Carolina Digital Newspaper Collection, and others. Seven current databases will be dropped, and three of those dropped will be replaced with new resources. Visit the NC LIVE website to view a complete list of which resources are being dropped or added. Please be sure to update/delete any links you may have in Blackboard to the dropped resources to reflect these online resource changes beginning in January.

Feature Films for Education: Also beginning in January, we will have access to a new collection of streaming videos via Films on Demand called Feature Films for Education. This high-interest collection focuses on titles for educational instructional purposes and includes literary adaptations, blockbusters, classics, environmental titles, foreign films, social issues, animation studies, Academy Award winners, and more.

"The CCCC Library has been very instrumental in my success,...The resources provided through the "online" library were well above my expectations, and the staff at the Sanford campus were always welcoming, courteous, and very helpful."

Chatham Updates

Valentines for Veterans:

From Monday, January 29, through Friday, February 9, stop by Chatham Community Library to make a Valentine for a Veteran. Cards will be collected and distributed to local Veterans via the Central Carolina Community College Veterans Affairs Office and the Joe Wagner V.F.W. Post 7313, serving Pittsboro, Siler City, and surrounding communities.

Black History Month Film Series:

Join Chatham Community Library as we kick off a weekly film series in celebration of Black History Month! Our film series takes place on the first 3 Wednesdays and on the last Monday (2/26) in February from 12:00 to 1:00 pm in the Holmes Meeting Room. Feel free to bring your lunch. The film series begins on 2/7 with 4 Little Girls (1997), directed by Spike Lee. This film documents the "notorious racial terrorist bombing of an African American church during the Civil Rights Movement." It won an Oscar in 1998 for Best Documentary. Other films in the series include: I Am Not Your Negro (2/14), What Happened, Miss Simone? (2/21), and 13th (2/26).

Harnett update

Looking for help with computer skills?

The Harnett library is now offering one-on-one help with Microsoft Office (Word, Excel, and PowerPoint). You can even get help creating your own WordPress site! To set up an appointment for digital literacy training, contact Grace Sharrar at (910) 814-8814 or by email at gsharrar@cccc.edu.

Expanded DVD Collection:

The DVD collection at the Harnett campus has more than doubled! Come by to check out our new selection of titles!

Instruction Time

The library is already scheduling library instruction sessions for the semester. If you are interested in having a librarian come speak to your students about information literacy or research methods, contact us to schedule a visit!

You can use the request form on the library's web page or contact Samantha O'Connor at ext. 7340 or by email at socon214@cccc.edu.

Library Instruction is available!

Reading lists

Are you an instructor with a list of books you'd like your students to read? Send your lists to the library ASAP so we can make sure we have the books in our collection. If we don't, we'll bring them in for you!

Resource Spotlight: Mango Language Learning

You may notice that Pronunciator is no longer available from our NC LIVE resources. But don't despair! No desesperes! Ne désespérez pas! Verzweifeln Sie nicht!

It's being replaced with Mango Languages, the premier language learning software!

Mango prepares learners for realistic conversations and strengthens everyday communication skills in over 70 world languages, including English.

If you need help getting started with this exciting new resource, contact Nora Burmeister at nburm777@ccc.edu to learn more.

Access Mango through the Research Databases section of the library's website.

Changes to the Sanford Campus Library

Our fall 2017 library satisfaction survey told us that the number one issue in the library is space. So we're doing what we can to provide more of it.

Last fall you may have noticed several empty shelves in our Sanford location. We've been re-arranging to make way for some exciting new changes! Those shelves have been removed, giving us plenty of space for quiet group study seating. More tables and new table and soft seating arrangements mean more options for study and relaxation in the library. We recently moved our special collections shelving to open up space for new computers near the front entrance, which will be coming soon. Special collections are now all in one area with the soft seating.

More tables and more open space for quiet study

College Archives

The digitization of our college archives continues with the help of the North Carolina Digital Heritage Center. The NCDHC has digitized almost 3000 images related to CCCC history. The latest set of digital photos contains images of the facilities on our Harnett and Chatham county campuses through all phases of construction.

If you have been a member of the CCCC community for years, we can always use your help identifying people and places. Contact Samantha O'Connor at 919-718-7340 or by email at soconnor@ccc.edu if you would like to lend your services.
