CCCC Library Fall COVID-19 Response

Due to the increasing number of COVID-19 cases in the areas surrounding the college campuses, all CCCC library buildings will continue to stay closed to students and the public until further notice. However, the library will still provide its services via curbside pickup for books and laptops, online chats with librarians, and virtual appointments.

To learn more about our curbside pickup service or to make an appointment for a pickup, check out our Curbside Pick Up Libguide. Additionally, check out our FAQ Libguide of commonly asked questions about our library services during our closure.

New Online Workshops!

This semester the Lee and Harnett libraries will be moving many of their in-person library events online to allow students with busy schedules more opportunities to benefit from or participate in library events in their own time. Three workshops are currently planned, with topics such as learning how to make your own image manipulation, basic coding, and stress relief crafts. These workshops will premier on the CCCC library Youtube page. Each workshop will feature a live Q & A. The library will announce more details on Facebook and via email as the semester progresses.
