NURSING DEPARTMENT NEWS - Fall quarter has been a busy time for the nursing students/faculty. Cheryl Batchelor attended the First National Conference of Cardiovascular Nursing in Baltimore, in September. A 'capping' ceremony and reception was held for 22 students with Kevon O'Hara the featured speaker. Nursing 101 students held a panel discussion on the "Needs of the Elderly" in November. Dr. Keith Johnson of Aberdeen, Ms. Deborah Lekan-Rutledge of Chapel Hill and Ms. Kathryn Weatherspoon of Southern Pines were panel guests. Gloria Peele reports that all 13 students (100%) taking the Licensed Practical Nurse Exam passed on the initial attempt. Congratulations students and faculty on a great record!

PERSONNEL CHANGES - Several faces will be missing after the Christmas Holidays. Dr. Jim Foster has resigned to join the staff at Technical College of Alamance as Dean of the College. Rhea Jackson has joined the Legge Associations in Aurora, Indiana. Bill White has taken an Electronics position with Haywood Tech in Clyde, N.C. However, new employees on staff include (a) Sharon Crisp, now a full-time Library Technical Assistant; (b) Donna Foust, part-time secretary at the Chatham County Campus; (c) Larry Hamilton, the Research/Planning Specialist for the college; (d) Charlotte McNeill, Accounting Clerk in the Business Office and (e) Ann McCracken, who has taught for CCTC on a part-time basis for over 8 years and now joins us on a full-time basis. Welcome, ladies and gentlemen!

FALL FACULTY (STAFF ACTIVITY) - Steve Lypany has attended an Automated Manufacturing Workshop (AM '86) in Greenville, South Carolina. Dave Ryser will be returning to industry during Winter quarter at Allied Fibers in Moncure, North Carolina. Larry Wright attended a 5-day General Motors Training Center Workshop in Charlotte, North Carolina. Kemp Burbeau was presenter/panelist at a recent North Carolina Central University School of Law Seminar in Durham, North Carolina. Bruce Jackson was guest speaker at the November meeting of the Sandhills Data Processors. Barbara Burton and Jenny Megginson set a record for curriculum students with 99 participating in their Saturday session on "Current Issues in Early Childhood Education." Keep up the good work, Group!
